

MANGO PUBLISHES THE LIST OF TIER 1 AND TIER 2 FACTORIES IN ITS SUPPLY CHAIN

For the first time, the firm is publishing the list of Tier 2 factories and updating the list of Tier 1 factories, which it published in 2020

The goal is for the 2022 publication to also include Tier 3 factories

BARCELONA, 23 DECEMBER 2021 – Mango continues to advance in its commitment towards transparency and has published a new list of factories in its global supply chain. Specifically, the firm has updated the list of Tier 1 factories in its global supply chain that it published last year. In addition, this year Mango has included the list of Tier 2 factories, related to production processes, for the first time. The list, available from today, may be consulted on the company website by clicking here.

The list includes information on the declared factories Mango produced in during 2021, fulfilling the requirements of the Transparency Pledge Standard, an initiative launched by a coalition of nine employment and human rights organisations committed to transparency in the supply chains of the clothing and footwear industry.

In 2022, Mango plans to publish a newly-updated list which will include Tier 3 factories, relating to raw materials.

In 2020 the company became the first major company in the Spanish fashion sector to publish a list of its production factories. The publication of this information is part of the Bilateral Agreement signed between and Mango and the CCOO Industry trade union in 2018, which aims to improve the rights of people who work in the manufacture of the firm's products, and to promote responsibility in global supply chains within the fashion sector.

Mango was founded in Barcelona 1984 and is today one of the leading fashion groups in the world. The company, which is present in more than 110 countries, closed 2020 with a turnover of 1.842 billion euros, of which the online channel represented 42%. More information at www.mango.com

For more information about Mango, contact:

Roman

Jordi Sacristán and Natalia Estepa

Tel. 666 479 956 / 646 639 918

j.sacristan@romanrm.com / n.estepa@romanrm.com